GIVE BACK

Health Gifts (and the Heroes Behind Them)

It takes a real health do-gooder to turn a personal crisis into a reason to help others. The heartwarming backstories behind these important causes made us admire these heroes even more.

Preserving Memories for the Very Sick

Kerry Glass, a New Jersey art therapist and videographer, was inspired to start Memories Live—a nonprofit that helps those with terminal illnesses create free movies to share their stories, photos, and wisdom—after she was devastated to hear about a local mother of two young children who died of lung cancer. The nearly three-year-old organization has made movies for 45 people from ages 22 to 96. Learn more at memorieslive.org.
